Nevada Commission on Ethics to host Briefing for Candidates and Campaigns

CARSON CITY, NEVADA (January 3, 2024) The Nevada Commission on Ethics is hosting an ethics briefing for political candidates and their campaigns on January 25. The webinar will help campaigns understand the Nevada Ethics Law and the Commission's process for both Advisory Opinions and Complaints.

The briefing will cover:

- Jurisdictional limits of the Ethics Commission over political campaigns
- Ethics rules for public officers and employees to follow during campaign season
- Review of the Advisory Opinion process
- Review of the Complaint process
- Compliance tips

"The goal of the briefing is to ensure that candidates and campaign teams have an understanding of the Nevada Ethics Law to improve compliance during the upcoming campaign season." said Executive Director Ross Armstrong. During the 2022 campaign season nineteen campaign-related ethics complaints were filed with the Commission. In five separate cases the Commission determined the Ethics Law was violated.

Interested candidates and campaigns can register at the Commission's website:
